As a representative of the Malaysian Australian community, the Preston Market has been a place of significant culturally socio-economically and an important part part of communities' identity.

As a community that moved to Melbourne in the 70s 80s and 90s the Preston Market was a hub of cultural diversity and fresh produce that was and continues to be important for our community.

It is with great regrets and grief that we have heard of the demolition of this cultural, social and economic hub.

We call upon the Victorian government to respect the social economic cultural and aesthetic value of Preston and the wider northern suburbs instead of demolishing this sanctuary of culture.

Kind regards.
