I really like the changes that have been made to the Arden Structure Plan and the vision for the Arden Precinct it represents.

There's clearly a major need for more open community space that can be used for a wide variety of purposes – from families enjoying green space, to games of soccer and football.

The current space at the North Melbourne Recreation Reserve is good, but we need that level of open space repeated – if not once, maybe two or three times!

The new Structure Plan also does well acknowledging the important role The Huddle plays in the community.

The Arden Precinct has to work for the community and it is vital that facilities with established links like The Huddle are given space to grow with the local population.

These were the main concerns I had about the draft Structure Plan – the lack of open community space, especially for games like soccer and football, and the lack of opportunity for The Huddle to grow with the community.

Good job – look forward to seeing the precinct grow and develop.
