I love being next to a farm and hearing the animals and seeing all the trees and nature. I love seeing the sunset through my window. All these things are why I love living here and you're telling me you're planning on taking that away. That will have a substantial impact on my mental wellbeing. Why do we have to keep trying to get rid of any big areas of land and turning them into commercial areas. Can't we have any nature left. As someone with a psych background I know the studies that have shown a positive association between nature and wellbeing, i genuinely know that if you carried out these plans all the people who live directly along ballarto road such as myself are going to be negatively impacted and probably will lose the number one thing they love about their house. I know every person that comes to my house compliments the fact I can look out my main windows of my house and see heaps of trees and green land and not a bunch of artificial rubbish. All those industrial buildings will surely ruin the peace and quiet I have too, oh and not to mention they'll block the sunset. I guarantee all the people that live the way I do would be opposed to this as well. I don't know why we need to build anything industrial near residential areas. Let's not forget the countless studies behind how bad industrial buildings are for people's health.
